Adenauer Will Keep a Firm Grip on Germany

BONN, Gormany — Konrad Idenauer Thursday night recorsed West Germany's largely honorary presidency and decided to keep his ron grlp on the countrys policy by carrying on as chancellor. Adenauer called an emergency meeting today of members of Parliament from his Christian Demograt Party to tell them of his surprise decision. A stormy session was indicated. The 83-year-old government chief apparently changed his plans be-cessor as changellor. He favored unassuming Finance Min ister Franz Etzel but a majority of the party supported the more aggressive Ludwig Erhard, who as vice chancellors and economic minister guided West Germany nmazing postwar recovery. Erhard, now visiting the United tates, was "most surprised" by Adenaucr's change of plans and declined comment, a spokesman at the German embassy in Washington said ....He just hasn't got enough nation to make any comments. an aid explained. But Erhard reportedly had no intention of cut ed States and hurrying home,

Some of Adenauer's followers openly brumbled that they could not figure out what new interna-tional factors had arison to call for his abrupt about-face.

Only last week Adenauer had said he had no intention of revers ing his decision to seek the prest dency. He also said he hadn't de cided on a successor but would pick one in full cooperation with

WEARING THE CROSS By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D. An interesting and thoughtful letter has come to me from a woman confronted with the ques tion of wearing the cross as as plece of jewelry, A friend's mother had given her daughter a gold cross; which on the death of his 'dearly loved" relative had come into the posses slon of my correspondent. She valued it for its obvious worth and beauty, and very deeply because of her affection for her friend. Also, as a sincere Christian, she has a deep sense of the meaning of the Cross of Christ. So. for a time, she wore it on a chain

"For so doing," my correspondent writes, "I was adversely criticized by a Christian who habitually found fault with those he named 'so-called Christians.' I told the critic that if I seemed to show disrespect by wearing the cross I would wear it no more, and I emoved it at once." The letter goes on to express some of her reflections, and hopes that I might help her. I have counselled her to resume wearing the cross. In general, I deprecate wearing the cross as jewelry, particularly when it is worn without any deep or devout feeling, or response to the Cross or Christ.

I have never worn a cross myself, but where, as in the case of my correspondent, it is a symbol of the reality of human love, in relation to her friend, and of divine love in relation to the Cross of Christ, it seems to me a very different matter. But whether to wear or not to wear a cross seems to me of much less importance than the matter of judging one another, and setting up one's particular stand ard for others. One cannot be too scrupulous and conscientious in fidelity to his own standards and convictions; at the same time, if one is decally Christian in humility, and love he cannot be too careful or scrupu-lous about judging others, It is a matter about which I feel strongly; partly because the spirit o divisioness and of setting others right has so deeply cursed the history of religion, but also because I have seen how possibly it is for Christians of very different attitudes to live together

In harmony,
In a world torn with conflicts and with hate such harmony suggests what might be possible if Christian and sensible attitudes prevailed.
